

Revamping is studied for ACCM

By PAUL G. FOX

Nearly 200 men attending last Sunday's biennial convention of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Men voted to establish a study commission to make an exhaustive inspection of the adequacy of the organization in view of the needs of the post-conciliar Church.

Responding to the address by Richard J. McCaffery, director of Affiliate Development for the National Council of Catholic Men in Washington, the ACCM will charge the commission to "bring together parish and diocesan council leaders who will more truly represent efforts to shape future Church policies."

McCaffery challenged the Catholic men to see changes as an essential part of our religious life... to recognize our calling as laymen to bring Christ into our daily lives... and to realize the sense of need by demonstrating that the Church exists to serve man and not vice versa.

LAWRENCE P. McFadden, of Jeffersonville, was elected to a two-year term as ACCM president, succeeding William B. Conner, of Tell City.

Other officers elected include: Joseph B. Sackenheim, of Indianapolis, vice president; Edgar W. Day, of New Albany, secretary; and John Roach, of Indianapolis, treasurer (re-elected).

The coveted St. Thomas More Award, given by the NCCM for exemplary lay leadership, was bestowed upon Sackenheim and Day.

In his address, McCaffery cited three general observations of Vatican II important for lay people.

- The tendency for Catholics to view everything that comes from Rome, whether from Pope or bishops as the final word on a subject, an absolute. Vatican II demonstrated this to be a false attitude. The decrees are not primarily absolutes, but rather door-openers — a challenge to bishops, priests and lay people to contribute thoughts and insights of their own generation so that the Church will have meaning for the people.

- The primary calling of the layman is to bear witness to Christ in his daily life, as an individual and in group action. This departs from the traditional thinking that so-called Catholic Action and Catholic organizations are the major vehicles for laymen to relate to the consequences of their Christian calling.

- Vatican II was called in response to a real need, summarized by McCaffery as the need to re-emphasize the humanity of the Church.

He cited several false attitudes that contribute to our failure to demonstrate that the Church is alive.

- Catholics have a tendency to make of the sacraments, some of the disciplinary laws of the Church and a few of the Commandments both the end of our religion and a summation of what it means to be a Catholic. Religion is limited to technical detail with no consequences seen in our faith.

- Lack of understanding of (Continued on page 9)

'Homes, highways' to be topic for panel discussion

INDIANAPOLIS—The Catholic Interracial Council will sponsor a panel discussion on the issues surrounding the displacement of families by the construction of interstate highways Sunday at St. Bridget's parish hall, 813 N. West Street. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Panelists will include: Robert Owens, of Catholic Social Services, as moderator; John Held, president of the Indianapolis Real Estate Board; Charles Johnson, president of the Central City Real Estate Board; Rev. Mozell Sanders, pastor of Mount Vernon Baptist Church, and president of the Homes Before Highways Committee; and Claude Spilman, attorney and board member of the Greater Indianapolis Progress Committee.

Admission of $1 will be charged to attend the meeting.

Cemetery rites

Cemetery devotions for the Poor Souls will be held Sunday, Nov. 6, at Holy Cross and St. Joseph churches in Indianapolis. Msgr. Joseph Brokhaug will lead the services, assisted by Latin School students, at 2:30 p.m.

DEDICATED TO POPE JOHN

New Madison school serves four parishes

By PAUL G. FOX

MADISON, Ind.—The Johannine spirit within the Church is aptly being demonstrated in this historic Ohio River community as laity and religious officials join forces to upgrade the quality of Catholic education for tomorrow's leaders.

Tangible evidence of lay leadership coming to grips with basic issues is evidenced in the construction of the new consolidated elementary school being completed here which will serve four parishes in the area. The Pope John XXIII School, now ready for occupancy, will replace present facilities at St. Mary's (built in 1876) and St. Michael's (1905) parish schools in "downtown" Madison.

CCD course announced

RICHMOND, Ind.—An advanced course in Christian Doctrine, sponsored by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, will be held for Richmond area parishes at St. Andrew's parish here starting Friday, Nov. 11, at 7:30 p.m.

The ten-week series will feature presentations by members of the Marian College theology department faculty. Certificates will be awarded to those who complete the entire series.

Scriptural and conciliar emphasis will be given to the course content, which will include sections on God, Man, Creation, The Fall, Christ, The Church, The Sacraments, and Liturgy.

The CCD course is designed for present or potential catechetical instructors although all interested persons may attend.

DISCUSS NEW MADISON SCHOOL — Discussing tentative plans for the November 20 dedication of the new Pope John XXIII School in Madison are three key people—Father Gerald Feldpausch, superintendent; Sister Mary Victor, O.S.U., principal; and Paul G. Scully, Building Committee Chairman. The consolidated elementary school, believed to be the first in the United States named after Pope John, will serve four parishes in the Madison area with an enrollment of 400 pupils.

VATICAN CITY — Pope Paul VI said he is delaying his long-awaited decision on artificial birth control "for some time yet" because the conclusions of the international commission that has been working on the problem "cannot be considered definitive."

However, he reminded Catholics that the Church's existing norms against the use of artificial methods to prevent birth "demand faithful and generous observance. They cannot be considered not binding in the teaching authority (magisterium) of the Church were in a state of doubt."

That magisterium, he said, is rather "in a moment of study and reflection concerning matters which have been put before it as worthy of the most attentive consideration."

It is the "law of God much more than our authority, a supreme concern for human life considered in its integral fullness, dignity and destiny much more than any partial concern," he said, which makes this existing norm of the Church "the best and most sacred norm for all."

The statement came during an audience with 300 participants in the 22nd national congress of the Italian Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists then meeting in Rome.

THE REGULATION of births, he said, "is a vast question, a very delicate question, and one on which we ourselves, because of its religious and moral implications, have the right and indeed the obligation to speak. It is a question of reality here and now. We know that people are waiting for us to give a decision. The thought of the Church on this question. But obviously we cannot make such a particular statement in this particular instance."

He noted that the Second Vatican Council made important statements on love, matrimony, birth and the family. "But these did not include the new statement expected from the Church (Continued on page 9)

UNIQUE PROGRAM

Council press panel revived for teachers

By FRED W. FRILES

"Which of you is Xavier Rynne?"

This was one of the first questions fielded by a "revived" Vatican Council press panel, who appeared at Chatham High School as a unique feature of last week's annual Archdiocesan Teachers' Institute.

The question, put by a working journalist, drew a negative response from the four-member panel members, all of whom held dispense the news of Vatican II to eager reporters at daily press briefings in Rome. The panel members included such prestigious names as: Father John Courtney Murray, S.J.; Father Barnabas Ahern, C.P.; Msgr. Mark Hurley and Msgr. John Quinn.

Father Raymond T. Bosler, editor of The Criterion and pastor of Little Flower Church, Indianapolis, and himself a council "expert," served as moderator.

Toising out the questions to the press panel were Herbert Kenney, Jr., executive vice editor of the Indianapolis News (who threw the Xavier Rynne "curve"); Father William M. Graney, assistant editor of the Chicago New World; Mrs. Thomas Maxwell, secretary of the Archdiocesan School Board; and Sister Susan Rford, O.S.F., principal of St. Christopher School, Speedway.

While denying that they were Xavier Rynne, the "mystery" writer whose caustic, forthright articles in the New Yorker were the talk of Vatican II, the priest panelists acknowledged that they know his identity. They failed to clue in the assembled educators at Chatham, however.

Questions that the experts did answer will provide ample fodder for the academic hot stove to sizzle for months to come.

SAMPLE: Isn't it true that Vatican II has stirred up a lot of trouble and unrest?

Answer: Yes, but this "trouble" reflects the "stirrings of the spirit" in a Church that has grown lethargic and complacent.

Question: Haven't the violent and drastic changes provoked reluctance to implement much by the council resulted in a

New state Conference will meet

The first general session of the newly-formed state-wide bishops' conference will meet Tuesday, Nov. 29, in Indianapolis. Archbishop Schulte announced this week. Our Lady of Fatima Retreat House will host the Indiana Catholic Conference in its organizational meeting.

Some 50 delegates from the state's five dioceses will attend the meeting in addition to Archbishop Schulte and the bishops of the four suffragan sees. The delegates represent the seven departments to be formed within the Conference, designed to finalize its organization, aims and objectives.

IN HIS announcement, Archbishop Schulte cited the need for the Catholic clergy and laity "to become more actively involved in the public problems of our time," as stated in the decrees of Vatican II.

"This has been done, and effectively so, by representatives of each bishop in his own diocese. The apparent need, however, is for the coordinated effort in the various fields represented by departments in the state-wide Conference. These are: Community Action, Social Welfare, Education and Youth, in addition to other supportive departments."

IN ADDITION to Archbishop Schulte, the Board of Directors for the Conference includes: Bishop Leo A. Pursley of Fort Wayne-South Bend, Bishop Andrew G. Grutka of Gary; Bishop Paul F. Lehbold of Evansville; and Bishop Raymond J. Gallagher of Lafayette.

Conference headquarters, opened September 19, are located in the Illinois Building, in downtown Indianapolis. Serving as executive secretary is James O. Brennan, a retired Army officer, who previously served as Public Affairs officer with the Ohio Education Association and as Director of the Ohio Council for Education.

Fr. E. L. Eisenman dies at age of 71

Word was received at Criterion press time of the death of Father Edward L. Eisenman, 71, retired pastor of St. Joseph parish, Four Corners (Denning Community). He died Wednesday evening at St. Paul Hermitage, Beech Grove, where he had resided in the past several weeks.

Funeral services are expected to be conducted Monday morning at St. Joseph Church, where he was pastor from 1949 to early this year. A brother, Father Omar Eisenman, survives.

 lounges for faculty, audio-visual facilities and a 1,400-square-foot library. The cafeteria, which doubly serves as a multi-purpose room with small stage, also accommodates the high school students. Cafeteria facilities at Shawe will be converted into other needed space.

Building contracts totaling approximately $390,000 were let, with area residents handling other smaller contracts amounting to $55,000. With the building committee handling contracts for the kitchen, painting, driveways, clock and sound system, etc., a considerable savings was effected. The construction resulted in a square-foot cost of $12.75, considered very economical.

Upon completion of the building project a debt of $200,000 remains to be paid on Pope John School, to be shared by the participating parishes. The projected shares are actual percentages of pupil attendance from each parish. For example, St. Mary's, with 182 pupils enrolled, will be responsible for 40.7 per cent of the operational expense and remaining capital expenditures.

Other parish shares include: St. Patrick's, 139 pupils, 34.9 per cent; St. Michael's, 85 pupils, 21.4 per cent; and St. Anthony's, China, 12 pupils, 3.0 per cent.

Production set at St. Meinrad

ST. MEINRAD, Ind. — Christopher Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus" will be presented for four performances at St. Meinrad Seminary College here during November.

Directed by Father Gavin Barnes, O.S.B., college drama department head, the play will be given on November 13, 16, 19 and 20. Curtain time is 2:30 p.m. (slow time).

Tickets are available from Mr. Bernard Kirsch, St. Meinrad College, St. Meinrad, Ind. 47577. Sunday performance tickets are $8. While weekday seats are 75 cents.

AN EXHAUSTIVE "white paper" on parish finance and school expenditures was prepared by the school board's finance committee this past summer and distributed throughout the area. The anticipated annual operating cost of the consolidated school is $410,000, or approximately $106 per pupil.

Taken with the annual operation deficit of $25,000 expected to be incurred by Shawe, the 19 and 20. Curtain time is 2:30 p.m. (slow time).

Tickets are available from Mr. Bernard Kirsch, St. Meinrad College, St. Meinrad, Ind. 47577. Sunday performance tickets are $8. While weekday seats are 75 cents.

parish should reach $140,000 for proper servicing of schools and other parish needs.

Since 1954 the parish schools at St. Mary's and St. Michael's have been consolidated under one administration and known as SS. Mary-Michael School. The school is staffed by eight Ursuline Sisters, including a music teacher, and five lay instructors.

Because of the limited classroom space in the respective buildings, St. Michael's has 183 pupils this year in five classrooms—grades one, two and three (combined), four, six and seven, and St. Mary's has 217 youngsters in six classrooms—grades one, two, three, four, five and eight. Grade One of St. Mary's School meets in the "annex," a neighboring house which formerly served as the Sisters' convent.

Serving as principal of SS. Mary-Michael School and continuing as principal of Pope John XXIII School is Sister Mary Victor, O.S.U., now serving her fifth year in Madison. The eight Ursulines reside in two convents, four each at St. Mary's and St. Michael's parishes, located about three blocks apart.

Since 1957, the parishes have been served by three priests who reside at St. Mary's, very Rev. Richard Grogan, V.F., is pastor of St. Mary's parish and also administrator of St. Michael's. His assistants, who both teach at Shawe Memorial, are Father Robert Drexler and Father Donald Buchanan.

THE TWO PARISHES are administered as distinct entities, with full services offered in both churches.

Upon transfer of the pupils to the consolidated school near St. Patrick's, the Ursulines will continue to reside in their respective "dormitories" until a convent can be constructed for them later near Pope John XXIII School, when funds permit.

Shawe Memorial also has four Ursuline Sisters on its staff. They reside in a frame house near the high school. The Ursuline Sisters have been in Madison since 1872.

The Catholic community in Madison has labored at great sacrifice through the years to maintain quality education for their children and young people. The present efforts which have resulted in a unique consolidated elementary school deserve the admiration and respect of the entire Archdiocese.

TOKEN OF APPRECIATION—William J. McClane, past-president of the Dads' Club, was presented a plaque in appreciation for his services to the school at a recent meeting of the club. Also shown above are Father William J. Schmidt, S.J., (left) school president, and Harvey C. Hagelskamp, president of the Dads' Club. McClane is currently serving as chairman of the school's development committee.

Fathers Berrigan, Lyons to debate 'Vietnam Issues'

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind.—"The Issues in Vietnam" will be subject of a debate between Jesuit Father Daniel Lyons and Josephine Father Philip Berrigan in the Leach Playhouse of the Purdue Memorial Center here Tuesday, Nov. 8, at 8 p.m.

The program was arranged with the cooperation of two students groups—Young Americans for Freedom and the Purdue Peace Union, known for their opposite positions on Vietnam.

Following the formal debate, the public is invited to continue the discussion in Newman Hall of the St. Thomas Aquinas Center, located directly across from the Memorial Center.

Father Lyons is a weekly columnist for the national edition of Our Sunday Visitor and is the author of two books on Vietnam: Future of Vietnam (1965) and Vietnam Crisis (1966). Father Berrigan has written extensively for Catholic periodicals on Vietnam. He is the author of No More Strangers, a book of essays on peace, race and ecumenism.

GENERAL CHAIRMAN—Nancy McNulty has been named general chairman of the "Focus on Youth" card parties sponsored by the St. John Bosco Guild. The parties will be held on January 26 at four sites in Indianapolis. Proceeds will be used for the C.Y.O. (Staff photo)

Avoid radical changes in liturgy, Pope urges

VATICAN CITY — Pope Paul has cautioned a worldwide gathering of liturgists to go slow in introducing "singular and unusual" elements into liturgical reform lest they "astound and disturb the praying community."

He told members of the conciliar for the implementation of the Vatican Council's Constitution on the liturgy that no changes can be introduced which are not approved by the bishops in council and this Apostolic See.

The Pope also drew a distinction between the work of the conciliar and of the curial Congregation of Rites. Since the formation of the conciliar, the different roles of each group has been a matter of debate and confusion.

POPE PAUL outlined the roles of the two groups in this way: "It is the task of our venerable and meritorious Sacred Congregation of Rites to establish the new ritual forms with stable and binding norms and to safeguard those which are already in force.

"But it is the function of this conciliar to exercise vigilance over the experimental phase of the innovations which are being attempted and introduced in the various ecclesiastical regions, to correct deviations which might occur here and there, and to put a stop to unauthorized and arbitrary initiatives which might cause disorder in the proper discipline of public prayer and perhaps even give rise to doctrinal errors.

"It is up to you, therefore, to prevent abuse, to guard those who are lagging behind or who are reluctant to change, to rekindle the enthusiasm of the weary, to encourage good initiatives, and to give praise where it is due."

MEMBERS MUST also examine ceremonies already in use, he said, and see to their renovation, while maintaining a respect for the "precious and venerated heredity" of the past. "Neither preconceived ideas prompting unjustified changes nor iconoclastic haste, which would reform and change everything are to guide this study, but rather religious prudence and intelligent respect for the past."

"We must seek what is best, rather than what is new. Nor does this mean," he added, "sealing the lips of the present-day church from singing its 'new canticle,' if indeed the breath of the Holy Spirit is there to make this possible."

Cardinal bars experimentation in the liturgy

ST. LOUIS—Cardinal Joseph Ritter, Archbishop of St. Louis, has threatened to reassign any priest who experiments with the liturgy in an unauthorized form.

In a letter to priests of the archdiocese, the cardinal also rebuked "any experimentation which may have been authorized in the past," and concluded by warning:

"I know that you will agree with me, therefore, that in the future, I should not continue in an assignment any priest who will not carry out the liturgy in the way officially approved by the Church."

Cardinal Ritter issued his letter about a week after he returned from a meeting in Rome of the post-conciliar commission for implementing the Constitution on the Liturgy. He is one of two American prelates on the commission.

Pointing out that liturgical changes are to be made exclusively by the liturgical commission and the Sacred Congregation of Rites, Cardinal Ritter said, "It is obvious that no individual priest or group of priests should presume to experiment with the liturgy.

"Moreover," he added, "any experimentation which may have been authorized in the archdiocese in the past is hereby revoked."

He said that this would not apply to new funeral rites recently authorized in 21 selected archdiocesan parishes.

SUMMIT MEETING POSSIBLE

World churchmen map peace effort

PHILADELPHIA—There is a possibility that world church leaders, including Pope Paul VI, might meet to discuss the fighting in Vietnam, Methodist Bishop Fred Pierce Corson said here.

Bishop Corson told a news conference, following his return from a meeting with Pope Paul at the Vatican, he thought such a discussion "would be a great advantage to our country and the world confessional bodies which would produce a statement on peace." He indicated the Pope approved a world conference of church leaders.

"I have reason to believe," the Methodist leader stated, "that if the mechanics could be worked out for such a meeting, the Holy Father would be favorably disposed."

Any peace in Vietnam could not be "just a cessation of hostilities, (but a settlement based on justice and morality," Bishop Corson declared.

"It is not our responsibility to tell governments what to do," he added, "but to quicken the conscience of governments."

BISHOP CORSON also said top-level talks between representatives of the World Methodist Council and Catholic leaders have been approved in Rome, with the first meetings expected to take place some time in the spring.

The bishop met in Rome with Bishop Jan Wilibrands and other officials of the Vatican Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity and had a 45-minute private audience with Pope Paul. His meetings were held under the authority of a resolution adopted at the World Methodist Council meeting in London last August.

Representatives at the Methodist-Catholic talks, he said, will include bishops, theological professors, pastors, and in all likelihood will have lay representation. The World Methodist Council has already appointed its delegates for such a meeting.

The agenda for the meeting has not been decided, he said, but it will undoubtedly begin with "discussion of four basic doctrines we hold in common: discipline, commitment to holiness, faith and good works, and the right to reject (respect for the individual's conscience and respect for the sacredness of personal consent)."

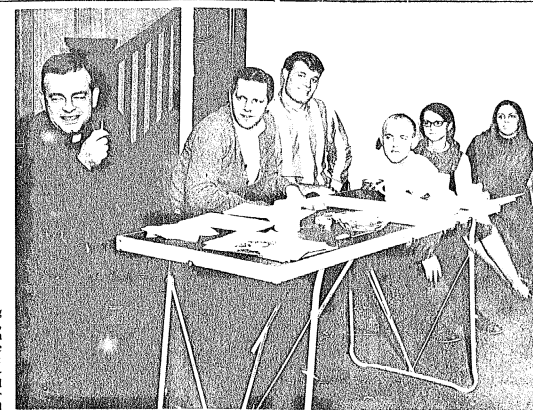

THE METHODIST leader, when pressed by reporters for details of his conversation with the Pope, said much of what was discussed must be "classified information."

He said that much of their conversation had to do with Methodist-Roman Catholic relations, but they did discuss "the situation for peace in the world."

He added, "The Pope is tremendously interested in all of Christendom, and when I came to see him I gave him some information on Protestant reaction to his statements on behalf of peace."

Bishop Corson said the Pope expressed his gratitude for the interest and widespread Protestant acceptance of his efforts for peace.

Bishop Corson said he proposed a joint statement on peace by all the world's religious leaders. He said, "I think an effort will be made to explore how religious bodies could meet with the Pope to issue such a statement. We have assurances that the Pope would welcome such action.

With respect to Christian unity, Bishop Corson said: "At present I don't think we are ready for one colossal, monolithic church organization. I don't think that would be the best way to express our unity."

Although the union would not be structural, Bishop Corson explained, it would be based on mutual respect and recognition of one another by the various church bodies. He said he was "very optimistic that the atmosphere for this has been established."

HE RECALLED that Pope John XXIII asked him during a papal audience how long he thought it would take to attain Christian unity. He said his answer was: "Your Holiness, that I cannot say. It might take a century, perhaps 400 or 1,000 years. But between you and me, unity has already been achieved."

Bishop Corson was critical of the recent statement of a commission of the British Council of Churches on sexual morality. "My chief criticism is that it ignores the whole New Testament position on morality," he said.

"I said that what the individual thinks is good, rather than what is objectively good, should be the standard for sexual behavior. I cannot accept the so-called subjective morality which says what a person thinks is acceptable should be right for him. Nor can I accept the concept of environmental ethics."

Blames Vatican II for election loss

BONN—German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard told members of his political party here that the party was defeated in the recent North Rhine-Westphalia State elections because of the influence of the Second Vatican Council.

Erhard told Christian Democratic Union members that change in attitude brought on by the council was responsible for large numbers of Catholics voting for Germany's Socialist party rather than the CDU.

News of Erhard's account of the election failure appeared in the information bulletin of the Family Federation of German Catholics. The Family Federation opposes Erhard because of his attempts to limit government tax exemptions for children.

Husband and father is ordained priest

By PLACID JORDAN, O.S.B. serving in foreign dioceses.

One other married American, Father Ernest Beck, has been ordained a Latin-rite priest. Father Beck, the father of two children and a former Lutheran minister, was ordained for the German diocese of Mainz in June, 1964.

Bishop Karl Joseph Leiprecht of Rottenburg ordained Father Bronk (Oct. 29) in the private chapel of Martini House, a diocesan boys' seminary here, in the presence of the new priest's wife and seven children.

FATHER BRONK offered his first Mass the next day, the Feast of Christ the King, and will be assigned to a parish in this diocese. He will continue his studies for a theological doctorate at Tuebingen University near here.

The necessary dispensation for this rare ordination was granted in Rome at the request of Bishop Leiprecht last spring on the condition that Father Bronk does not return permanently to the United States to engage in priestly functions. This is due to the fact that several American bishops, though not all, are reluctant to have married priests under their jurisdiction.

EVENTUALLY, however, it is felt that American Catholics will accept this innovation now that several precedents have been established in Germany, Denmark and the Netherlands. The restriction could then be lifted for the Americans now

Louisiana forms Sisters' council

NEW ORLEANS—The 33 religious communities of women active in the New Orleans archdiocese have formed a Sisters' council to share ideas and solve common problems on the basis of Vatican Council II documents on Religious life.

Archbishop Philip M. Hannan of New Orleans said that council membership would in no way mean that individual religious communities will sacrifice either their independence or autonomy.

Auxiliary Bishop Harold R. Perry, S.V.D., is episcopal moderator of the council.

Serra expanding of Montevideo, Uruguay, president of Serra International. Serra clubs to promote vocations to the priesthood will soon be organized in Germany, it was announced here by Jan Berbers for Latin America.

The opinions expressed in these editorial columns represent a Catholic viewpoint...

The ladies rebel

It was bound to happen, that revolt of housewives which began in Denver and is spreading across the country.

Nobody is more acutely aware of skyrocketing food prices than the average housewife, especially the one with several mouths to feed.

Government economists have insisted all along that a little inflation is a healthy thing. But consumers with just a few dollars to stretch know that inflation is not little, not healthy, and not moral.

The rise of at least 12 per cent in food costs between September, 1965, and September, 1966 — and that is the estimate of an Indiana food distributor — has been a near-disaster for the poor.

Surely, many a harassed mother must have gagged on the President's advice to use less expensive cuts of meat. There are no "cheap labels" and even those standbys of the "cheap table" — potatoes, cabbage, onions and the like — have almost become luxury items.

Esther Peterson, a presidential adviser on consumer problems, said recently in Lafayette that housewives are fed up with gimmicks like trading stamps, bingo, and prize drawings which add to retailer costs.

Mrs. Peterson said, "The American housewife is awakening to the fact that she isn't getting her money's worth, and I'm glad to see she's doing something about it."

In effect, the presidential adviser has told the ladies they are on their own and that boycotts and such pressure tactics are their only resort.

It is known that large food manufacturers are responding to a rumor that the government may freeze prices after the November elections and have hiked prices deliberately so that they will be at an all-time high if the freeze does materialize.

It also is a fact that large supermarket chains react to livestock market price rises and manufacturers' predictions long before those products actually enter supermarket doors.

Yet, despite these common practices, presidential advisers have nothing more to offer than, "Go to it, ladies."

When ordinary staple food becomes a luxury in a prosperous nation, it is morally irresponsible for government to stand by uninvolved.

Big man, big day

In July of 1864 President Lincoln visited beleaguered Union soldiers at Fort Stevens on the edge of Washington who were fending off the fury of Confederate General Jubal Early in his last-ditch try.

Not since then has another President visited frontline troops until Mr. Johnson made his trip to Vietnam last week.

Standing on a parapet trying to gauge the action of the enemy, the lanky Lincoln made a wonderful target. In prose too colorful for family newspapers, Capt. Oliver Wendell Holmes — later of Supreme Court fame — ordered the President down out of the line of fire.

President Johnson made an oversize target, too, as he viewed American forces at Cam Ranh Bay. Though carried out in secrecy, the visit was expected. It is in the nature of the President to want to "press the flesh." It was his first opportunity to have intimate contact with that segment of the populace that concerns him most — the fighting man in Vietnam.

Repeatedly Mr. Johnson has sought to quell criticism of his Vietnam policy by appealing to the public's concern for the morale of the troops. Many have disagreed with his line of reasoning in the matter, but he has worried, sincerely so, that the criticism, the anti-war demonstrations and rallies would damage the spirit and dedication of the fighting man.

So he himself spoke to "the young and the brave" at Cam Ranh Bay, assuring them that their efforts and valor were in the highest regard of their countrymen and in the highest tradition of their country's heroes.

He ate with the men, visited wounded, pinned on medals, signed autographs and, of course, shook hundreds of hands. His emotional message of tribute and thanks was responded to in kind by the thousands of soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen who heard it.

The trip to the war zone was a heartfelt, honorable gesture by a commander-in-chief to his men in the field. And a big day for a big man.

Education's goal

Testimony given recently before a subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress has emphasized the drastic changes that must be made if the nation's educational system is to cope with the ever-expanding body of technological knowledge.

The Joint Economic Subcommittee was hearing about schoolroom techniques because educational technology now is a major field of corporate research and investment. In fact, much of the testimony reinforced the opinion of one corporate executive that the American economy for the remainder of this century will be built around education, just as it has been built around the automobile for the past 40 years.

It has been estimated that as much new technical knowledge will be developed in the next 30 years as has been accumulated in the entire history of mankind. Today students are using textbooks, methods and machines that baffle their college graduate parents. And science and industry have advanced with a vengeance into the age of the computer.

Much of the testimony to the committee concerned glamour aids to education — television, computerized instruction, and other teaching machines.

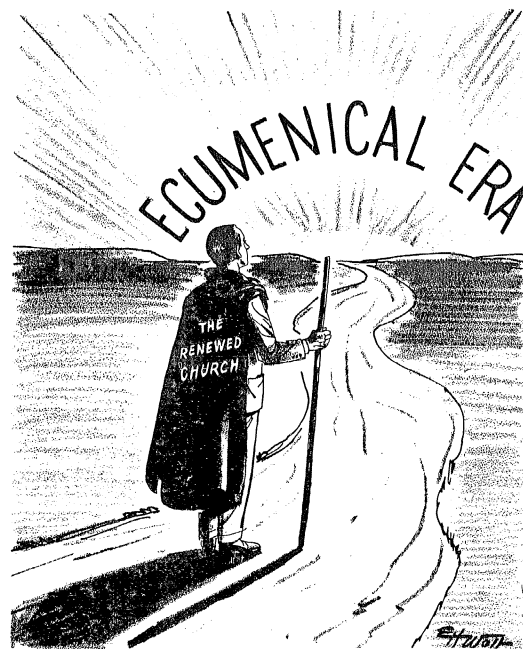

Much of the country's school system, however, is handicapped by outmoded buildings and other facilities that defy efficiency. Education resists change, as seen by the slow acceptance of community colleges and in the stress on standardization, regardless of the background or ability of the individual student.

But if the amount of knowledge is to be related in increasing geometric proportions year after year, there is need for much more than sophisticated hardware to store and dispense that knowledge. No one student or body of students can absorb the quantitative accumulation.

So the primary duty of education remains the same: to teach the student to think for himself.

The mass employment of sophisticated devices and techniques without equal attention to individual minds and morals could result in the most "educated" elite the world has ever known. But it would be a robot elite.

Rosary appeal

To the Editor:

As you know, the Holy Father recently made an urgent request to the Catholics of the world to pray the Rosary for Peace. But millions of people do not have a Rosary. We of the Campaign for Surplus Rosaries are convinced that if they owned a Rosary, they would be more inclined to say the daily Rosary. It is true that one does not need a Rosary to recite the Rosary; however, it does encourage one to recite the Rosary when one has the beads at his disposal.

In the U.S.A. there are thousands of "surplus" Rosaries, including broken ones. We gather these, repair them, and distribute them, free, to the poor. We want to distribute Rosaries to the poor in time for Christmas.

Rosaries may be mailed to: Rev. Patrick Peyton, C.S.C., 773 Madison Ave., Albany, N.Y., 12208; or to: Rosaries; St. John Seminary; 2500 N. Tyler St.; Little Rock, Ark., 72207.

New film code

To the Editor:

The Bishops' Committee for Motion Pictures, in applauding the intent of the new revised movie production code, has hastened to point out the inherent weakness of any voluntary set of guidelines: Not every- one is willing to abide by them.

The main effect of the new code is the replacement of specific prohibitions in the earlier version with general principles. We wish to point out the inherent weakness of any voluntary set of guidelines: Not every- one is willing to abide by them.

QUESTION BOX

Pines for old-time religion

By MSGR. J. D. CONWAY and anything that will raise farm income? Isn't this mocking the teaching of Christ?

Q. What happened to the way of teaching religion as we were taught? Who made us? Why did God make us? Etc.

A. The John Birch Society is an anti-American and anti-Christian organization whose members do not believe in the eighth commandment, in social justice, or in Christ's law that we love our neighbor. Their sense of truth is badly distorted.

Q. I am happy about the changes in the Church, but I wonder about the words, "according to the Scriptures" which have been inserted into the Apostles Creed, so that it is made to read: "And on the third day he rose again, according to the Scriptures."

A. First, a couple of corrections: The profession of faith to which you refer is not the Apostles' Creed, but the Nicene Creed; and no change has been made in it. That expression, "according to the Scriptures," has been a part of this Creed at least since the Council of Chalcedon in 451, and the Nicene Creed has been used in the Latin Mass since the nineteenth century.

The Apostles' Creed is Roman in origin; the Nicene Creed came from Constantinople. Both were originally used as professions of faith before baptism.

The expression "according to the Scriptures" comes from Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, 15, 3-4: Paul reminds the people of the Gospel he had preached to them, "that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures, . . . and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures." Both the King James and the Douay versions use this expression: so it has more than three centuries behind it, at least.

However, we might do better to follow the translation used in the Revised Standard Version, which was raised on the third day in accordance with the scriptures. The horrible fuss we would raise by using that passive verb . . . which St. Paul used in the original Greek.

You have a good point though: The English and Wales have recently changed this phrase by adopting the wording used in Scotland and Australia: as the Scriptures had foretold.

The Pope further stated, in the same encyclical, that the norms of justice and equity must be strictly observed in determining a just wage. "This tries to organize the farmers? One that fights everything requires that workers receive learn to exercise an equivalent maturity in order to fulfill its true potential as an art form. The new code allows such fulfillment without restricting any producer's freedom or any director's talents.

The aims of the code cannot be accomplished, however, without the total commitment of the industry: the big and small production companies, the theater owners and the distributors of both American and foreign films. It is now up to the industry to police itself.

The National Catholic Office for Motion Pictures, having emerged from the strictures of censoriousness and threats of boycott, has shown a tasteful, sensitive maturity in its judgment of film fare.

YOUR WORLD AND MINE

Does the habit make the nun?

By GARY MACEOIN

When nuns are around, what is the inevitable topic of discussion? The habit, of course, what else? To retain, to shorten, to simplify, to smarten, to scrap.

Now no Madison Avenue cigarette claim has been repeated as often as the basic truth about the religious habit. Habitus non facit monacham. The habit doesn't make the monk. Or the nun, either. It is the most commonplace commonplace in all the commonplace devotional books of religious fiction. It is true, yet it hasn't sunk in.

There are no statistics, but the mysterious — to themselves, also — processes which give newsmen answers to everything, inform me that not one in a hundred of our 181,821 American nuns (official Catholic Directory, 1966) accepts that proposition. To scrap the habit would be to scrap the institution. So they seek compromise. The council said they should modernize. So how about mid-length, drop the blinkers, halve the pleats? Or let's be daring, have Schiaparelli design a clerical airline-stewardess effect.

It just won't work. The Schiaparelli approach is, I fear, the worst of all the compromises. It equates aggrandizement with being a regular Joe (or one), a true 100 per cent American. So they seek compromise. The council said they should modernize. So how about mid-length, drop the blinkers, halve the pleats? Or let's be daring, have Schiaparelli design a clerical airline-stewardess effect.

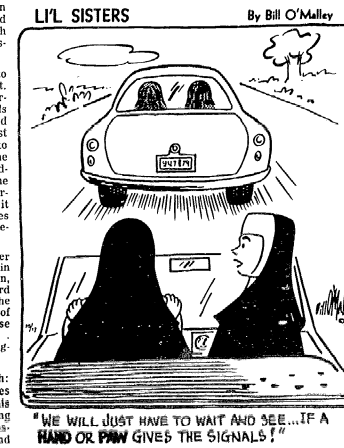

Over the past several months I've come to the realization that this basic principle of PR simply ain't so. Not only will an in- finite number of assertions not make a truth, but more disturbingly, an infinity of repetitions of a truth will not necessarily bring conviction.

Let me explain how this disturbing realization dawned. Circumstances have recently brought me considerably more dealings with nuns than at any previous time. It is not that I had avoided them. They just weren't to move much in my circles. I am the gainer by this change, very definitely.

But any compromise, any identifying dress, is an obstacle to the nun, wherever her work. Mike Novak, whose perceptiveness I had avoided them. They just weren't to move much in my circles. I am the gainer by this change, very definitely.

Even if, as can occasionally happen today, you meet her in street clothes and establish a human rapport, the moment she dons the habit, the atmosphere changes. As Mike put it, you just can't help "paying respect to the habit." But it is respect bought at an excessive price. And I see only one solution in the substitution of simple, modern, non-identifying, non-nuniform dress, what would look right on one's mother, one's wife, one's sister or one's daughter, according to age and situation. If a nun has virtue, it will still show, if she hasn't, let her be identified.

If what I suggest has any merit, it applies equally to the clergy, of every rank and color. But one must be realistic. On this issue, the women in their thinking are a full generation ahead of the men. So let's concentrate on what is possible, if the nuns can find a way around the roadblock of the all-male congregation of Religious. And from what I hear, like all women, they will find a way to have their way.

THE YARDSTICK

View from the bridge

By MSGR. GEORGE HIGGINS

On October 23 thirteen members of a farm workers' union were jailed in Rio Grande City, Tex., for lying down on the international bridge across the Rio Grande River between Roma, Tex., and Ciudad Aleman, Mexico.

Unfortunately, however, the facts do not seem to support Mr. Nelson's contention that the green-carders are violating the law by living in Mexico and working in the United States.

In response to this situation, the Secretary of Labor had issued a certification under the pertinent section of the Immigration and Nationality Act that the admission of any aliens to the United States for employment at the Peyton Packing Company of El Paso, Tex., during the strike presently in progress will adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States similarly employed.

Mr. Nelson is partially correct. There can be no doubt that the fact that the daily influx of green-carders has an adverse effect on Texas wage rates in Texas fields.

WHAT OF THE DAY

Look before you vote

By REV. JOHN DORAN

I think that voters throughout the nation should take a good look at their Representatives in Congress and their Senators before voting this November, take a look at their own voting record, and take a look at the constitutional position these men are supposed to hold.

It is important to this country to keep each section of our government in its own place. The division between powers was made originally for a very good purpose, that of dividing powers lest any sector of the government become so dominant that it threatened the liberties of the people.

cerned about the label which the man wears; I would settle for his really being a man, and a representative of the people who elect him, not an errand boy for the President who seeks to "boss" him.

Eight youth leaders given Bosco Medal

By DENNIS HOFFMAN

Eight Indianapolis area adult youth leaders were presented the St. John Bosco Medal for outstanding service to youth at the 14th annual CYO Banquet Wednesday evening in the Seccina Memorial High School cafeteria.

A capacity crowd of more than 1,000 attended the affair, which is one of the highlights of Catholic Youth Week. In addition to the St. John Bosco Medal, awards were presented to five parish CYO units for their accomplishments during the past 12 months.

ARCHBISHOP Schulte presented the medals to the recipients. They include: I.F.D. Captain James V. Gavaghan, of Little Flower parish, football coach for 10 years; Paul D. Luedde, coach of the parish CYO unit, man, St. Joan of Arc, head basketball coach for nine years, assistant football coach, chaplain for various youth functions, worker on the Parish Youth Festival.

Also Stephen F. Papesch, St. Catherine parish, helped form the Parish Youth Activity Committee, coach of the parish CYO baseball team two years, Latin School baseball coach four years, instrumental in the creation of the Msgr. Downey Athletic Field; Frank W. Puckebaum, Jr., St. Philip Neri, kickball coach for 13 years; Joseph J. Wolf, Little Flower, football coach 10 years, active in Boy Scouts including a term as Assistant Scout Master.

Also John C. O'Connor, St. Joan of Arc parish, member of the deaconry CYO Board of Directors of the St. Mary's Child Center and the St. Mary's College Advisory Board; and Owen C. Sweeney, St. Joan of Arc, Co-ordinating Director of the parish Junior CYO unit, coach of the quiz contest team for nine years, member of the Parish Youth Council, chaplain for several CYO social functions.

ST. CHRISTOPHER parish won the "Junior CYO-of-the-year" trophy for the second consecutive year. The Westside parish was also awarded the Outstanding Achievement Plaque. Four parishes, Holy Name, St. Catherine, St. Gabriel and Holy Trinity, received framed certificates for "Distinguished Participation."

Banquet speaker was Bishop Raymond J. Gallagher of Lafayette, Ind.

Play-off tilts planned in CYO grid leagues

Championship play-off games in the Indianapolis Deaneries CYO football leagues are on tap at the CYO Stadium Sunday. In the "100 League," St. Michael (Division One) meets Little Flower (Division Two) at 12:30. Tonight (Friday) sees a tie-breaking game between St. Catherine and Our Lady of Lourdes for first place in Division Three. Kick-off time is 5:15 at the CYO Stadium.

The winners will play for the league championship on November 14. In the "100 League," St. Michael (Division One) meets Little Flower (Division Two) at 12:30. Tonight (Friday) sees a tie-breaking game between St. Catherine and Our Lady of Lourdes for first place in Division Three. Kick-off time is 5:15 at the CYO Stadium.

LAST NIGHT found the opening of competition in the Cadet League play-offs with St. Andrew of Division One playing St. Roch (Division Four). Results of that game were not available at Critterium press time. At 2 p.m. the Division Two 11-30. The championship and consolation games will be played Sunday, Nov. 13. Tickets for that game were not available at the stadium. Gates open at 11:30.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Seccina challenges Cathedral tonight

By HERB MacGREGOR

What promise to be the top contest of the Archdiocesan high school football program will be unfurled tonight (Friday) at CYO Field. Cathedral, coming like the wind in the late stages of the grid campaign, takes on the high-scoring and very dangerous Seccina Crusaders in this week's top attraction.

The Irish Joe Dezelan have won three straight since they lost to second-ranked Jeff of Lafayette. With John McCracken and the other Cathedral backs gaining momentum since the Jeff game, the Irish are keyed up to add another win to their string of triumphs.

However, it will not be easy. Tim Armand, the stellar quarterback of the Crusaders showed in last week's game with North-west that he is back in mid-season form. Tim missed early games for the Seccina eleven because of injuries, but has come back strong. Seccina, next, is regarded as one of the top-flight teams of Indianapolis.

In order to beat Cathedral, Jim Grimaldi, the Crusaders' talented halfback, must be at his best. Jim was great in his latest outings against Chartrand and Northwest, and he will no doubt be a marked man in his start against Joe Dezelan's strong ball club.

JACK BAKER's speedy Brent breder often having chucked up their ninth win of the season at the expense of Chartrand's Rams last Friday night at Pike, 20-13, for their 19th straight win over a two season span, ended their successful campaign last night at Pike. If Brebut won as expected last night, it will be the team's second consecutive unbeaten campaign.

Press Workshop slated at Woods

ST. MARY-OF-THE-WOODS, Ind. — An Indiana Collegiate Press Association Editors' Workshop will be held at St. Mary-of-the-Woods College here Saturday, Nov. 5, to provide an opportunity for open discussion of mutual problems of magazine, yearbook, and newspaper editors.

Moderating the discussions will be Judi Burke, first vice-president of ICPA from Indiana University newspapers; Sandra Barney, second vice-president from Ball State University; yearbooks; Eileen Carr, third vice-president from St. Mary-of-the-Woods college; magazines; Sylvia Tung, fourth vice-president from Butler University; business problems; and Sister Norbert from St. Mary-of-the-Woods, advisers.

The Chartrand Ritter game also may be quite interesting Thursday at Broad Ripple. Chartrand flexed its muscles in a 47-7 wallop past Beech Grove last week, and Ritter knocked off Franklin Central, 19-7. Both teams were keyed up for the Thursday contest, played after Critterium press time.

Woods academic calendar changed

ST. MARY-OF-THE-WOODS, Ind. — St. Mary-of-the-Woods College has announced a change in the academic calendar effective with the 1967-68 school year. Purpose of the change is to finish the first semester before the Christmas vacation.

Under the program, registration and opening of classes will begin earlier. Thanksgiving vacation will be shortened by one day, and the first semester will end with the last examination on December 22. The between-term vacation, also Christmas vacation, will be almost a month long, and the second semester will be in mid-May.

Final events slated for 1966 Youth Week

Three major events scheduled Sunday — one each in Indianapolis, New Albany and Richmond — will wind up the observance of Catholic Youth Week in the Archdiocese. St. Andrew's parish will host the Richmond Deaneery event, the annual "D" Day, starting at 11 a.m. Father Keith Hoesy of the Pope John XXIII Center in Hartford City will head a team of speakers for the event.

The evening's activities will include 4:30 Mass at St. Andrew's followed by a dinner and dance at the YMI.

SUNDAY's attraction in Indianapolis will be the popular Baking Contest, which traditionally closes Youth Week.

Rearing three sons vexing for widow

By JOHN J. KANE, Ph.D.

My husband was killed when my three sons, now five, six and seven were young. Recently I was ordered to remove the six-year-old from school because of his physical at-nationally and psychologically. Even more unfortunately, some abuse their children and offer a perfect model of what a father ought not to be.

So let's begin on the positive side. You lost your husband; your sons lost a father. It may be small consolation to you, but if you have read some of the letters in this column, you do not have the problem of a delinquent father. Of course, I do not mean that your husband was, but rather that, when you have one problem, you do not have another.

We all have problems to face and with God's help to surmount. Your situation is difficult, but not impossible. Above all, do not permit yourself to be overwhelmed with self-pity. Do not believe you are—yet. But the undertones in your letter, all of which I could not re-produce, seem to indicate this possibility.

I have already remarked that the source of your problem cannot be traced exclusively to the loss of your husband. Many questions could be raised about just how you handled the situation when it arose. How did you rear your children since your husband's death? One of the very unfortunate aspects of American life is that we pre-fer neither ourselves nor our children for bereavement.

In an inclined to believe that following your husband's death you tended to overindulge your children to compensate them for the loss of a father. This is natural enough, and I am not blaming you, but I fear you are now reaping the harvest.

The aggression your sons are expressing results from frustration stemming from what they consider deprivation. This constitutes a threat to them as they see it. But it is highly unrealistic since there is no possibility of restoring their father. In other words, this is a situation with which they must be taught to live.

All of us at times are ambivalent as psychologists would put it, i.e. we tend to love and hate at the same time. It is not unusual for young children to strike their parents, to bite them, to tell them they hate them. It is a childish way to work off aggressions.

The first step I urge is investigation of what the real source of the boy's frustration is. The absence of a father is part not all of it. In view of the acute problem of having one son dismissed from school, I strongly recommend that you seek help. I am amazed that the school authorities did not tell you this. The cost of psychiatric consultations is expensive, and obviously you can scarcely afford it. (Continued on page 12)

SCIENTIST-THEOLOGIAN . . . Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, one of the most distinguished thinkers and scientists of our time, was born in Auvergne, France, in 1881. A Jesuit priest, Father Teilhard was professor of geology at the Catholic Institute in Paris. Later, as director of the National Geologic Survey of China, Father Teilhard played a major role in the discovery of the Peking man. His books, especially "The Phenomenon of Man" and "The Divine Milieu," are considered outstanding publishing events of the century. Perhaps Father Teilhard's chief accomplishment will be seen in the influence he had on the reconciliation between religious and scientific thought. He died on Easter Sunday, 1955.

IS IT THE SAME CHURCH?

Why Mary matters

By F. J. SHEED

As things now are, the Mother of Christ comes between us and other Christians to divide. When she of all people should unite. On both sides the division comes from not using the mind about it.

To o m a n s Catholics decided to leave the thinking to the o l o g a n s while they themselves got or with the loving A n d preacher. have been known to let the head lie still while the heart ran riot, and the tongue outran the heart. As a reaction, Protestants too often developed an insensitivity towards her (for many she survived only in Christmas carols); the conviction that we gave her too much honor strangely kept them from asking whether they themselves gave her enough. And now we find a good many Catholics too reacting away from her for the same twofold reason—revulsion against too much sugar, failure to use the mind. We and they must all look straight at her.

She matters BECAUSE OF the Son she bore—a fact forgotten by a preacher we once heard who, having lavished all his oratory in praise of her virtues, concluded "And what must the Son of such a mother have been?" But she matters not only or mainly because she bore Him. What He did for her is greater than what she did for Him. He received His natural life from her; but she received her supernatural life and her eternal salvation from Him.

Consider what St. Augustine wrote over 1500 years ago—"Mary was more exalted by her sanctity than by her motherhood of Our Lord"; "More blessed was Mary in receiving Christ's mediation—how much more can hers. We must return to this: a whole lot of ecumenical difficulty is bound up with it.

Upon these facts about her Christians have got their relation twisted! All must have some beginning of the love and reverence her Son and our Savior must feel—must feel that is, unless He is utterly inhuman, Other Christians need not have our special devotions. But our devotion all should have, and come way of showing it.

In a general way, even Protestants who find it hard to feel at home with her would agree with me. It is not easy, I admit, to imagine the Bishop of Such and Such, or So and So, showing their love for her in any spectacular way. But my conviction is that most Protestants could develop a true love for her—true reverence, and know themselves closer to Christ for it.

But what of her Motherhood of us? Lifelong Catholics take it in their stride, yet without giving any special thought to it. If we are to help Protestants to understand ourselves, and her, we had better think hard. My own feeling is that too many of those who have written and spoken of her as their Mother must themselves have had unsatisfactory mothers; one or more in them a craving to get from her the mothering they never had in the order of nature.

A mother-substitute is as perilous to one's sense of reality as a father-figure. Men who love their own mothers will understand her motherhood better. It is interesting to compare the terse matter-of-factness of her utterance in some of the apparitions, Lourdes for example, with the highly wrought sentimentality of most statues. Her Son gave her to us as a mother in the order of grace, of holiness to be sought by us and preserved from loss and regained when lost.

And here we come to a difference which runs very deep, almost down to bedrock, between the Catholic mind and the Protestant mind. That we should as Our Lady and the saints to care for us, pray for us, seems to Catholics the most natural result of Christ's redeeming work, to Protestants a plain denial of it. What can men do, they ask, that Christ cannot?

As it happens, upon this matter Scripture is with the Catholic. Our Lord who is the Good Shepherd appointed Peter to be His Shepherd (John 21:15-17). He is the Rock of Ages, but actually He made Peter the Rock on which He should build His Church (Matthew 16:18). He is Savior, but Paul could write of himself as savior—I became all things to all men, that I might save all (1 Corinthians 9:21); and he calls on Timothy to do likewise (1 Timothy 4:10). Christ is the one Mediator: Paul (1 Timothy 2:1-4) gives that as the reason why we should help others by our prayers—help them to piety and chastity and so to salvation. And if our prayers can help them—in virtue of Christ's

Week In Liturgy

By REV. PASCHAL BOLAND, O.S.B., S.T.D. (St. Meinrad Archabep)

NOVEMBER 6—Twenty-third Sunday After Pentecost. Jairus was a prominent man in Capernaum, a government official, whose daughter had just died. He had heard about Christ and believed in Him. With simple and straightforward faith he said to Christ, "My daughter has just died, but come and lay your hand on her and she will live" (Gospel). Christ then went with him to his home and restored the girl to life.

This miracle is reminiscent of the centurion of the Roman military garrison, also a Capernaum, who may have been acquainted with Jairus who was a Jew. The pagan officer, however, did not ask that Christ come to the barracks to cure his servant but only, "Say the word and my servant will be healed" (Matt. 8:8). Christ replied, "I have not found so great a faith in Israel" and the Gospel tells us that "the servant was healed in that hour."

With all the precedents for faith in Christ that we are familiar with from our knowledge of Holy Scripture, is it possible that our faith in Christ is a great deal less than that of the Roman army officer or of the Jewish ruler?

NOVEMBER 7—Mass as on Sunday. That woman who sought to avoid publicity by not "Take heart, daughter, your faith has saved you" (Gospel). NOVEMBER 8—Mass as on Sunday. Yesterday's generation complains of the un-Christian conduct and lack of faith manifested by today's generation, but do the fathers, mothers, and others of the older generation use the power of prayer to obtain the constant flow of the bleeding for 12 years, thought divine life of grace in the that she could quietly steal a younger generation? Jairus' miracle of healing from Him obtained from Christ the life of without His even knowing it, his daughter by one prayer. Do However, Christ let her know we have the faith of Jairus or that He knew and praised her the Roman officer in our publicly for her faith in Him, (Continued on page 12)

HERE AND THERE—Religious superiors and directors of vocation from four high schools conducted by the Brothers of Holy Cross met at Cathedral High School last Saturday to discuss the fostering of vocations to the priesthood and religious life. Msgr. Joseph D. Brokhage, rector of the Latin School, addressed the group representing the following schools: Cathedral, Indianapolis; Bishop David, Louisville; Gubbalt School, Terre Haute; and Reitz Memorial, Evansville. Chairman was Brother John Lovelle, C.S.C., vocation director for the Brothers of Holy Cross. An afternoon panel discussion, led by Hugh W. Sullivan, Indiana Alpha Rota Club, featured several high school juniors and seniors. According to Brother Douglas Roach, C.S.C., Cathedral principal, the meeting was experimental for the benefit of the vocation recruiters. . . . Father Omer Eisenman, retired pastor of St. Mary's parish, North Vernon, celebrated Mass last Sunday morning for the first time in five months. The 77-year-old priest is in residence at St. Paul Hermitage, Beech Grove. . . . "What are Teachers Thinking?" is the topic of an article by Sister M. Xavier, O.S.U., of Shawe Memorial High School, Madison, appearing in the current issue of the Catholic School Journal. Priests, nuns and lay instructors express themselves candidly on issues they confront daily in a Catholic high school.

NAMES IN THE NEWS—French department chairman, Sister Gertrude Smith, S.P., of St. Mary-of-the-Woods College, has recently completed translation of the French text "The Struggle With God" by Evdymokov. The work, an introduction to the spirituality of the Eastern rite, was published by Paulist Press. She is presently translating a dialogue between Danielou, French Catholic writer, and Chouraqui, a well-known Israeli layman. . . . Best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Escott, members of Little Flower parish, Indianapolis, who will observe their 20th Wedding Anniversary on November 8. . . . Cathedral High School grads Michael W. Duell and William A. Hasbrook, both freshmen at the University of Notre Dame, will appear with the N.D. Glee Club on the Andy Williams Show next Sunday evening (Nov. 6) on television. The famous Glee Club is directed by Dr. Daniel Peddie.

MEDICAL BREAKTHROUGH—A Richmond native now surgery professor at Washington University Medical Center was one of a three-man team that has been able to develop another major heart valve recently. Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, a former member of St. Mary's parish in Richmond, won the Notre Dame Centennial of Science Medal last year. An exhibit of the four heart valves developed at Georgetown since 1959 are on display in the Smithsonian Institution's new Hall of Medical Sciences. The latest heart valve, culminating eight years of research, is a device which can be sewed into the human heart to replace a diseased or disabled valve, that part of the heart which regulates the outflow of blood.

GROUP LEADERS' TRAINING—Pointers for chaplains and moderators of Lay Apostolate groups, interested in living up to their meetings, will be given during a training program starting November 14 at St. Thomas Aquinas School, 4610 N. Illinois St. The four consecutive Monday afternoon sessions will be scheduled from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in the school's audio-visual room. Topics will include the Decree on the Lay Apostolate, and Social Institutions in Our Modern World. Demonstrations in methods and techniques of role playing and group dynamics are also slated.

Plan open house at Latin School

INDIANAPOLIS — An open house for seventh and eighth grade boys and their parents will be held at the Latin School, 13, starting at 2 p.m. Tours will be given of the facilities prior to an explanation of the Latin curriculum. The first time in history that the student population has exceeded 10,000. The current figure is an increase of 100% in 10 years.

Honor Fr. Keller NEW YORK—Father James Keller, M.M., founder and director of the Christophers, was one of four religious leaders honored at a luncheon here inaugurating the 26th annual National Bible Week.

The Pope said and extremely varied and extensive study of the problem of regulation of births, which has not yet been made because we ourselves, having promised and having reserved the matter for discussion to consider carefully the doctrinal and pastoral applications which have arisen regarding this problem in recent years, studying them in relation to the scientific and experimental data which have been presented to us from every quarter, especially from your medical field and from the field of demography, in order to give the problem its true and worthy solution, which can only be one, that is, moral and Christian."

The Pope said he appointed his "Board" and extremely varied and extensive study of the problem of regulation of births, which has not yet been made because we ourselves, having promised and having reserved the matter for discussion to consider carefully the doctrinal and pastoral applications which have arisen regarding this problem in recent years, studying them in relation to the scientific and experimental data which have been presented to us from every quarter, especially from your medical field and from the field of demography, in order to give the problem its true and worthy solution, which can only be one, that is, moral and Christian."

"It seems to us, nevertheless, that these conclusions cannot be considered definitive, because of the fact that they carry grave implications together with several other weighty questions both in the sphere of doctrine and in the pastoral and social spheres which cannot be isolated and set aside, but which demand a logical consideration in the context of what precisely is under study. This fact includes once again the enormous complexity and the tremendous gravity of the subject which concerns the regulation of births, and it imposes on our responsibility a supplementary study. "We are resolutely undertaking this study with great reverence for those who have already given it so much attention and tiring labor, but likewise with a sense of the obligations of our apostolic office."

"This is the reason why our response has been delayed," the Pope said, "and why it must be deferred for some time yet."

of the thinking of Vatican II should not be a source of discouragement. The actual situation now is now going on in the Church at the grass roots level. It is not dependent on official pronouncements from Rome. After a solid hour of questioning by the official panel, the meeting was opened to queries from the audience. One of the most practical questions was put by a priest-principal, who wanted to know what the high school students about the doubts and uncertainties which are assailing the post-conciliar Church. Father Ahern's reply: Tell them the truth. Other questions were deftly fielded by the four panelists, and the 900 teachers left with the feeling that they had received a significant aspect of Vatican II. Best unanswered question of the day was raised by a departing delegate: After that performance, what can the School office give us next year for an encore?

Broad agenda set for bishops' meeting

WASHINGTON—At their annual meeting at Catholic University of America here November 14-18, the U.S. bishops will revise the statutes of their national episcopal conference in accord with the developments emerging from the Second Vatican Council.

Other matters on the agenda include the development of a theological and canonical commission, and reports on the liturgy, ecumenism, and seminary training. Since 1919 the name National Catholic Welfare Conference has been used for both the episcopal conference as a whole and for the bishops' general assembly here. At the annual meeting not only the remaining of the episcopal conference will be discussed, but also the general assembly, with the possibility that the latter will have a separate name. The purpose for separate names is to distinguish the active activities of the two entities.

THE SCOPE of activity of the episcopal conference is ecclesiastical in nature, including the work of such bishops' commissions as liturgy, ecumenism, etc. The secretariat, the agent of the conference, is what it means to be a Christian in daily life. Our training has been in religious piety with pious acts—religious stories on the desk, ignoring bad duties, public grace before talking "religion" to non-Catholics. As a result very little Catholic effort is expended to improving the general climate of the community. . . . The sincere but crippling distortion of what reverence the clergy needs, so that we rarely communicate our needs or our insights. For the good of the Church and for our own integrity as people we should communicate in honesty. . . . McCaffery observed that the present structure of the diocesan laymen's council does not permit the necessary exchange of communication between laymen and their bishops. "At the diocesan level," he stated, "too many councils of men are too narrow in sense of purpose. Too many councils exist to carry out the mandates of the bishops at a time when bishops, professionally are looking for initiative and creativity. . . . Too many councils exist to service parish organizations and not the people of the diocese as a whole at a time when more and more people recognize that traditional organizations are dying. . . . And finally, too many councils stand as a federation of organizations at a period when less than 10 per cent of Catholic adults are associated with them."

The meeting was held at Brebeuf Preparatory School in Indianapolis.

Troop morale is high, 'Hoosier' chaplain says

CINCINNATI, O. — "Despite the hazards of combat and exposure to tropical diseases the morale of our troops in Vietnam is high. And they feel they are fighting for a worthwhile cause," said Army Chaplain Major Theophane (Marion) Dattilo, O.F.M., who was recently medically evacuated from Vietnam.

Father Dattilo is remembered in Batesville as assistant pastor at St. Louis Church from 1952 to 1953.

A MEMBER OF THE Cincinnati Franciscan Province, Father Dattilo was flown by armed helicopter on 60 battle missions in three months throughout the Vietnam Delta region. He administered the sacraments, celebrated Mass and visited and counseled the troops under combat conditions.

After contracting Erythema Multiforme, a virus that causes swelling and rashes over the entire body, Father Dattilo was evacuated to Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D.C., for treatment and reassignment. He gained about 15 of the 16 pounds he had lost.

"The troops are always glad to see the chaplain. They consistently thank him for coming to conduct services and to talk with them. And the invitation to 'come back soon' is always extended. The Protestant chaplain and I always traveled together and had services simultaneously," Father Dattilo added.

Sr. Monica Marie, former missionary, dies at the Woods

ST. MARY-OF-THE-WOODS, Ind.—Funeral services for Sister Monica Marie Rigoni, S.P., a former Chinese missionary, were held at the motherhouse of the Sisters of Providence here October 29. She died October 26 in the convent infirmary after an illness of more than one year.

A native of Lockport, Ill., sister Monica Marie entered the convent in 1905. During the next 25 years she was an elementary teacher at St. Anthony's and St. Patrick's Schools, Indianapolis, and in Chicago.

In 1931 she began a 15-year assignment in Kai Feng, Honan, China, where she taught in the Providence-in-China School operated by the Sister of Providence. She also assisted in training catechists and in organizing the Providence Chinese Society, composed of native Chinese women.

During World War II, Sister Monica Marie was imprisoned with the American Sisters of Providence in the Weissen Concentration Camp, where all foreign religious and missionaries were held. She returned to the U.S. in 1945.

Since her return she was assigned to St. Agnes School, Chicago. From 1952 until early this year she resided at St. Philip Neri, Indianapolis.

A sister, Mrs. Anna Stahl, of Joliet, Ill., survives.

"Besides fishing a military war, our boys are helping the Vietnamese develop a higher standard of living. Our troops help rebuild villages, they bring food, clothing, medical supplies and offer professional advice. Some of these supplies come from families and friends of the servicemen in the states, and from individual parishes.

The villagers, continually harassed by the Vietcong, need and appreciate this assistance. I saw the same conditions of poverty and suffering when I was a combat chaplain for 16 months in Korea. And, as a result of American aid, the Korean villages have adjusted economically," Father Dattilo said.

"A fitting tribute on Veteran's day, 1966 is an extra prayer for peace in Vietnam," Father Dattilo concluded.

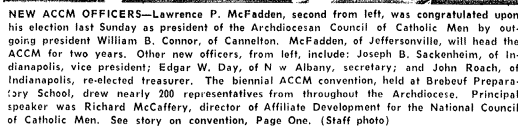

Father Dattilo has received nine military decorations, two certificates of achievement, a letter of commendation, and has been recommended for a Bronze Star for his service in Vietnam.

TORONTO — While fish on Friday no longer is required by Church law, it may remain a popular custom among Catholics in Canada. A survey of restauranters conducted by the Globe and Mail newspaper revealed there was no noticeable drop in the number of fish orders the first Friday following abolition of the Friday abstinence rule by the Canadian bishops.

it. But in many cities and towns they have psychiatric clinics for children and one pays what he is able. If anything, they have various names such as Child Guidance Centers and such.

See if such a clinic exists in your vicinity. Your family physician or Catholic Social Service will be able to inform you. If not, unless your physician feels otherwise, I would make an appointment. You may have to wait a bit but get there as soon as possible. Your children are young and my opinion is that they have a most favorable prognosis.

If such clinics are not available to you then go to one of the social agencies in your city, particularly one that handles family counseling. They usually have among their resource persons a psychiatrist, so you may obtain help in this way.

In the meantime, you will have to be firm with your boys than you apparently have been. Generally, I do not believe in physical punishment but if you cannot strike you again, hit him back. The blow will not hurt nearly so much as the shock of it. I think you will find a look of extreme surprise on his face. Try to be both consistent and realistic about money. Tell your boys when they ask for something you can or cannot afford it, and stick to it. Don't let them throw you for a loss by crying about not having a father. I tend to think this has been a very potent weapon in their hands which works and which they will use so long as it works.

Inform the school authorities of what you are doing for your son by way of psychiatric consultation. Perhaps they will take him back. Don't despair of marriage, if this is what you want. A good step father would help a great deal but alone will not solve the problem.

Rejecting episcopal support for war, they said: "Certain bishops appear to take the part of one side or another. This is not their role. By taking sides, bishops arouse passions even further and dig divisions yet deeper."
